Volume 20 No. 3

March 2005

Editor's Notes

After the issuing of stamp imprinted post cards was discontinued in 1985, I was sad to see these items disappear and thought I would never see cards with a stamp impression again in Canada until in 1997 the "Postcard Factory" cards appeared.

Now we are getting flooded with all kinds of prestamped cards, all without the value showing, but all "For mailing in Canada and delivery worldwide". This makes it very convenient, but also quite costly for us collectors.

Already this year we have the two "Year of the Rooster" issues, the three flower stamp imprinted cards and the four Fishing cards to be issued in February.

But this is not all. The "Postcard Factory" cards with the flag indicia currently available and other new PCF view cards, are being reprinted with the Maple Leaf indicia which was issued as a stamp in 2004 and was obsolete on January 17.

Almost every week Robert Lemire receives mail reporting new discoveries of the maple leaf imprinted PCF cards.

Below is a list of the Maple Leaf stamp imprinted cards (without showing a value) so far reported from various collectors (supplied by Robert Lemire).

Member Andrew Basar has some additional information on the "King George V Oval Die Envelope Varieties" researched by Bill Walton in our last issue of Postal Stationery Notes:

"I came across a variety not on the list regarding crossed border loops. I have an EN35c which is 2¢ on 3¢ which is 25 mm long and has 27 dots. It has crossed loops at the top and side. I didn't find any more in my collection. I also have an EN40 with a white plate flaw at left."

The Elizabethan Spacer Cards

by Mike Sagar

One of the interesting anomalies that appears to be unique to Canadian stationery was the creation of "spacer cards" for organizing overprinted envelopes in the Elizabethan period. I have not been able to find research on this subject (other than the footnotes that appear in the envelope section of Webb), so will describe what I have in my collection in the hopes of generating discussion on the topic.

This far into the reign of Queen Elizabeth II, Canada has overprinted stationery envelopes on 5 occasions. During at least three of these operations the envelopes were returned to boxes with brightly coloured "spacer cards", that had an overprint matching the envelopes that had just been revalued, separating envelopes at every 25 count. The actual number is a guess based upon the number of items in a standard bundle, and a find years ago of a Centennial spacer that contained 19 cards. Postal cards from the same issues never appear to have had spacer cards.

Ordinarily envelope stock of this period was bundled in 25s and held by an unprinted white thin card band which was taped on back. This would have been done in the end stage of production of the envelopes. When existing stock had to be sent back for restocking the bands had to be broken, the envelopes put through the machine, presumably followed by a quick check to make sure the overprinting was successful, and then returned to a box for redistribution.

I have seen untouched stock of the 1954 KGVI 5c overprints on #8 envelopes (Webb EN69b), and those envelopes were re-banded at the end of the process, which must have been labour intensive. There are no reported spacer cards from this issue. (I count this as the first QEII-era overprint, even though she isn't depicted on the envelope).

Ten years later, in 1964 the rise in the printed matter rate from 2c to 3c left significant quantities of the Second and (to a lesser extent) First Karsh envelopes (in both #8 and #10 sizes). Instead of rebanding these items after overprinting a card was put after every 25 envelopes, meaning that a standard box of 500 envelopes would have 19 spacer cards tucked in it. These cards have no postal validity, and were usually thrown away by the postal clerks. For this issue I have a dark red spacer on a thin card stock (the thickest of all recorded examples) but only in the #8 size.

The next batch of overprinting happened over a couple of years in the middle of the Centennial period, and had two different denominations done by three different companies. This period has produced the greatest variety of spacers.

Interestingly, I have not come across an example of a spacer with a 5c overprint (Style A) in either size. Does anybody have anything in their collections to add to this?

Examples of the 6c spacer with the Gasparo (Style A) overprint exist on both #8 and #10 sized cards in blue.

For the 6c Enveloppe Internationale (Style B) overprint, I have a #8 card in bright yellow. In the #10 size, I have a blue example (similar stock to the Gasparo overprint) and an example on green stock. I also have a #10 blue spacer card in blue that does not have any overprint on it (mentioned for the record only).

The last of the Centennial overprinting was done in 1971 by British North American Banknote Co. (Style C), of which I have a #8 example on an ochre/dirty yellow stock. Interestingly, this was used in 1971 with a 1c Centennial added, as a postcard. I also have two #10 sized spacers from this issue in orange and yellow (different shade than the stock with the style B overprint).

The Fisher revalues of 1979 was the last issue to use spacer cards. There are two varieties of each size of the 15c spacer. Both the #8 and #10 size is known in blue and yellow. My copy of the #10 yellow card was favour cancelled in Sardis BC (same sender as the 1971 usage). I do not own a 17c overprint, although Webb states that #8 sized examples on blue stock exist. My faulty memory recalls seeing a #8 sized blue spacer with the 15c on one side and the 17c on the other. Can any members confirm this?

Spacer cards are not known from when the 32c Transportation envelopes were overprinted in 1986, bringing to a close this little explored sideline of Canadian stationery collecting. There are at least 5 items which should exist that I have not seen. Please send your additions to the editor. (With thanks to Dick Staecker and Pierre Gauthier for sharing from their collections)

#61. P67a 1¢ + 1¢ green George VI Issue reply card (38/O), 1-line and 2-line English headings, types 5 and 12. Used: Nelson, BC, August 28, 1940. There is a private roulette between the cards with a black separator. The "loose lips" wartime propaganda is printed in red on the message side, and black on the reply.

#62. KP67/78 1¢ green George VI blank card (private black heading) (38/T) and 3¢ mauve, Type 1 (43T). Size 140 x 89 each half, or 6 mm deeper than regular reply cards.

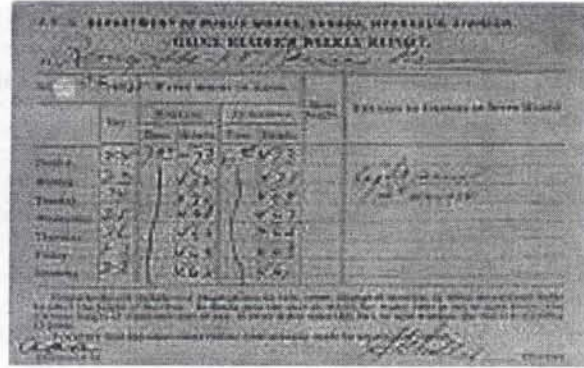

This private order card was used to report the breeding of pigs for the fourth quarter of 1943. The private type five heading measures 49 x 2 mm. There is a centre roulette with mauve separation dashes on the three cent side. Printing: 3600. Dated November 1943. Similar cards were produced 1944-1948, but not all were private order.

Contributions of material found odd or interesting from members are welcomed. Good copies of material are needed. Please contact John Grace at jandmgrace@sympatico.ca if you can offer something.

ODDS 'N' ENDS BY JOHN GRACE #63. P22 Gauge Reader's Report

I don't know when this water level reading cards were introduced, but this is an early use. Used: Ranie, Minnesota(!), December 20, 1912. Was there some kind of agreement with the US Post Office?

#64. P27f Workmen's Compensation Board

P27f 1¢ green Admiral, 2-line English heading (type 6). Die IA. Form No. 27 The Workmen's Compensation Act Ontario establishing the Workmen's Compensation Board was passed in 1914. This is the earliest card in my collection. Used: House of Assembly, P.O, Ontario, January 7 1915.
