

LOCATION OF NIBS ON DIE CUT TO SHAPE STAMPS FROM QUARTERLY PACKS/ANNUAL COLLECTIONS

By: Dudley Nash

Nibs are small interruptions in the die cutting which result in the stamps remaining lightly attached to one another after die cutting. They are found on coil stamps and on stamps which have been die cut to shape for inclusion in Canada Post's Quarterly Packs and Annual Collections. Their use on stamp coils is to prevent individual stamps separating from the backing paper during, and subsequent to, the coiling process. Why they are used on die cut through stamps is not so easily explained. Nibs are used on self-adhesive miniature sheets issued in Britain, presumably to prevent individual stamps detaching from the miniature sheet during the preparation of first day covers. The stamps used to prepare Canadian first day covers do not have nibs. To prevent se-tenant pairs of stamps or blocks of four stamps from separating during cover production, shallower, or incomplete, die-cutting is used between the stamps.

So why are there nibs on die-cut to shape stamps? Assuming that the complete press pane is die-cut in a single operation, nibs would prevent individual stamps detaching from the pane and causing problems when the press pane is guillotined into individual booklet panes. Also, for accounting and inventory purposes it might be simpler to count whole booklet panes rather than individual, loose stamps. If this is the case, one would expect the same reasoning to apply to stamps destined for first day covers. Also, as can be seen in the table, not all issues have nibs, which suggests that their presence is not essential.

The use of nibs on stamps, particularly if the nibs are large, can cause damage to the stamp when it is being detached. I have come across several stamps where almost an entire peak is missing – the die cut equivalent of a short perf.

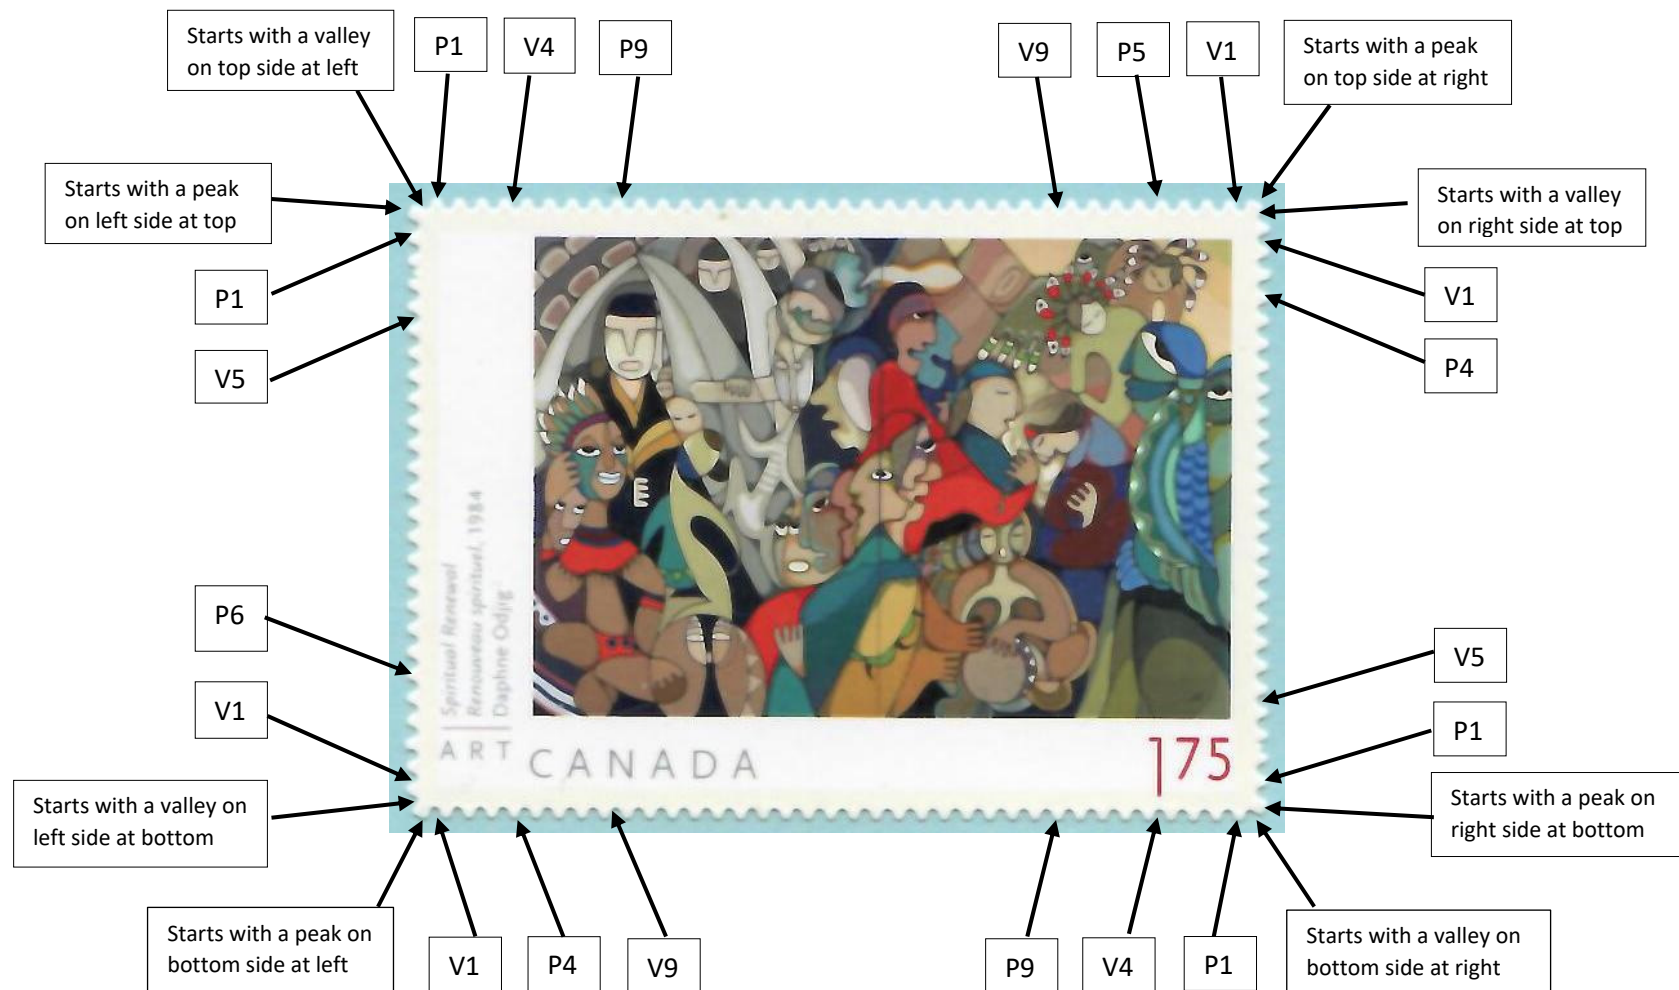

In the table the locations of the nibs are determined as follows. For straight die cutting, the location of a nib on a specific side of the stamp is measured in millimeters from the nearest corner. For serpentine die cutting, the nibs are mostly at the tip of a peak or the base of a valley. In some cases, the nibs are on the side of a peak and, as can be expected, there are nibs which fall between these two locations. The location of the nib is recorded as the number of complete peaks or valleys from the nearest corner piece. The corner piece is not counted. If the corner piece is such that it forms a peak at the corner on that side of the stamp, then a complete valley precedes the first proper peak. If the corner piece results in a valley at the corner of that side of the stamp, then a peak precedes the first complete valley (see diagram below).

For most stamps, the locations of the nibs were determined by examining only two or three samples of the stamp. As noted in the table, there were a few cases where two different nib locations were found for the same stamp. It is very possible that there are other stamps displaying more than one nib variety. It should be noted that some die cutting through the backing paper can leave quite a ragged edge making it easy to overlook a nib, particularly a small nib.

For some se-tenant booklet issues the pair of stamps can exist in two formats. In such cases the nib locations can differ depending on whether the stamp is the left or right member of the pair (or top or bottom member of a vertical pair). In other cases, the nib locations are the same for stamps in both positions.

Only the seven coil stamps depicting NHL Team Logos (Unitrade 2662i-2668i) and the Maple Leafs 100th anniversary coil (Unitrade 3043i) are included in the table. All the other coil stamps from Quarterly Packs/Annual Collections have a nib located at 3 mm from each corner on the two straight die cut edges and no nibs on the serpentine die-cut sides. This is the opposite of stamps from coils obtained from Post Offices where there are no nibs on the straight edges but there are nibs on the serpentine die cut edges. The Toronto Maple Leafs 100th Anniversary coil stamp (Unitrade 3043i) has a single nib near the bottom of the straight section on the left side and a single nib near the top of the straight section on the right side. The locations of nibs on die cut to shape definitive coil stamps from Quarterly Packs/Annual Collections is discussed in the Unitrade catalogue and are not included in the table below.

The location of nibs on die cut to shape stamps from booklets of six United States, Oversized, and International rate stamps is described in the Unitrade catalogue, but not those for the Permanent rate booklets of ten. Both are included in the table below.

- ⁱ The nibs are located on the extreme left or right of the top and bottom sides of the stamp.
 - ⁱⁱ The nibs are located at the extreme top and bottom of the left and right sides of the stamp.
 - ⁱⁱⁱ The nibs are located 1.5mm from the nearest corner on the straight die cutting on the corner piece
 - ^{iv} Having two nibs close together on the left and right sides of the top and bottom sides of the stamp causes damage to the stamp
 - ^v Unusually the nibs are on the sides of the peaks.
 - ^{vi} Copies of this self-adhesive stamp found on first day covers produced by Canada Post do not have nibs
 - ^{vii} There are 2 nibs between the stamps in the die cut to shape se-tenant pair.
 - ^{viii} There are no nibs on the stamps. However, there is a nib at the left and right ends of each of the horizontal black lines in the inter-stamp gutters.
 - ^{ix} There are no nibs on this stamp. It was supplied in the Quarterly Pack/Annual Collection, together with 2744, as a complete pane of two stamps.
 - ^x A nib is located at the base of the upper notch in the left and right leaf lobes.
 - ^{xi} The nib positions are those seen when the stamp is viewed in the upright orientation.
 - ^{xii} There is a single nib at the bottom of the straight edge on the left side and one at the top of the straight edge on the right side.
 - ^{xiii} Based on the position of nibs, there are at least two varieties of this die cut to shape stamp
 - ^{xiv} The die cut to shape pairs from Quarterly Packs and Annual Collections exist with and without nibs
 - ^{xv} The die cut to shape stamps from Quarterly Packs are die cut 16.5 x 16.5. The stamps from complete booklets are die cut 13.5 x 13.4.
